African American Studies, Inc.
2026 CONVENTION

Continuing the Black Freedom
Struggle
1776-2026

February 5-8, 2026
Montgomery, Alabama

On behalf of the Board of Directors of the Southern Conference on African American Studies, Incorporated (SCAASI), I welcome you to the 2026 convention in Montgomery, Alabama. SCAASI has been in operation since 1979 and continues to highlight the achievements of African Americans, preserve the stories of people and communities who are often forgotten and educate the next generation of scholars. During the convention this year, we will honor and remember the legacy of Dr. Carter G. Woodson as we celebrate the 100th Anniversary of the founding of Black History Month.

This year the convention theme is Continuing the Black Freedom Struggle: 1776-2026. Montgomery, Alabama serves a powerful reminder of how people can come together and demand representation and freedom. It also serves as the ideal representation of Ujima: Collective Work and Responsibility. With Ujima, the community addresses problems together and solves them together. SCAASI embraces this ideal and works to highlight the value and strength of this concept.

We are excited to host the conference in the Elevation Convening Center and Hotel. The hotel is part of the burgeoning Peace and Justice Memorial sites in Montgomery, Alabama. In addition, it is our honor to have Alabama State University serve an active role in participation in the convention by supporting faculty, staff and student participation. SCAASI could not be successful without the participation and contributions of educational partners and supporters. We acknowledge all of the colleges and universities who are working with us to ensure that our stories continue to be told and make space for research and scholarship on the African American experience.

Thank you to our local planning committee, Dr. Alecia D. Hoffman, Chair. Please enjoy all of the panel sessions, roundtable discussions, individual presentations, shared meals and networking with colleagues and friends. Take time to visit the historical sites in Montgomery and reflect on the convention theme. Together, we will continue to change the world for the better!
